

Joshua Lim

<https://www.nature.com/articles/d41586-021-01372-6>

A)

21 May 2021

Scientists zero in on long-sought marker of COVID-vaccine efficacy

Smirti Mallapaty

B)

The article talks about the marker of effectiveness of Covid Vaccines. It, of course, talks about the covid virus.

C)

The source meets at least 4 of the 5 criteria. It takes complex concepts and delivers simpler but usable information. The original research paper is 5+ pages long with extensive details. The article seems to list out all the key ideas and points. There is no apparent agenda, the article simply talks about potential markers of covid vaccine effectiveness. The source talks about recent activity, which in this case is the covid pandemic. The writing style is also engaging by getting to the point of the research in the first paragraph; it then talks about the details later in the article.